Report to the President and Congress Pursuant to Section 209 of the Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act of 2008

The United States Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) is submitting this report to the President, Congress, and the public as required under section 27(j) (15 U.S.C. 2076(j)) of the Consumer Product Safety Act (CPSA) as amended by the Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act of 2008 (CPSIA). The content of this report is specified in the CPSA and the CPSIA. The report describes many of the activities performed to protect the public from hazardous consumer products. Readers may also be interested in the CPSC's 2010 Performance and Accountability Report, required by the Government Performance and Results Act. All reports are available on the CPSC's website at www.cpsc.gov.

The CPSC (or the Commission), established by Congress in 1972, is the federal regulatory body tasked with protecting children and families from unreasonable risks of injuries associated with consumer products. In 2010, the Commission launched a comprehensive strategic planning initiative to update its existing strategic plan and help align agency priorities to meet the challenges of the twenty-first century. For example, globalization and technological advances have increased the range of products on the market, as well as the challenges involved in overseeing and regulating thousands of product types that can be assembled across multiple countries. The resulting 2011–2016 Strategic Plan was developed through a consultative process involving input from consumer groups, industry stakeholders, and agency staff. It lays out an approach to achieve the CPSC's broad mission of protecting the public against unreasonable risks of injury from consumer products through education, safety standards activities, regulation, and enforcement. The overarching vision for the strategy is that the CPSC is the recognized global leader in consumer product safety. Readers may view the strategic plan on CPSC's website at <http://www.cpsc.gov/cpscpub/pubs/reports/2011strategic.pdf>.

The CPSC stands for safety and has been effective in reducing consumer product-related injury and death rates by using a wide range of strategies to identify and address product safety hazards. These strategies are:

- Hazard Identification and Monitoring: collecting information and monitoring injury and death statistics related to the use of products under the CPSC's jurisdiction;
- Safety Standards: participating in the development and strengthening of voluntary safety standards and developing mandatory standards;
- Compliance and Enforcement: enforcing compliance with standards through compliance activities, such as recalls or other corrective actions, and litigating when necessary;
- Public Outreach: educating consumers, families, foreign governments, and industry about product safety recalls, safety alerts, emerging hazards, and safety standards; and
- Intergovernmental Coordination: coordinating on product safety issues with other governmental stakeholders.

The report is organized around the five strategies noted above.

HAZARD IDENTIFICATION AND MONITORING

The Commission, in fulfilling its mission to protect the public against unreasonable risks of injuries associated with consumer products, collects, reviews, and analyzes data on deaths, injuries, and societal costs associated with such products. This section describes the “Incidence of Injury and Effects to the Population” associated with products under the jurisdiction of the Commission. Four tables present summary data by totals and by age groups for:

- product-related deaths;
- product-related injuries;
- percent of emergency room visits resulting in hospitalization; and
- estimated costs of injuries.

Product-Related Deaths (Table 1). The CPSC collects mortality data through contracts with each state. The CPSC reviews about 8,000 death certificates each year, covering unintentional product-related deaths from all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and New York City. The CPSC purchases death certificates that have a high probability of consumer product involvement. However, because we do not purchase all death certificates, and because those we purchase do not always identify the products involved, the total number of actual product-related deaths may be higher than the number we report. While the deaths in this table represent product involvement, that involvement does not necessarily indicate causality.

Product-Related Injuries (Tables 2 and 3). Each year, the CPSC collects information about product-related injuries through its National Electronic Injury Surveillance System (NEISS). This unique system provides statistically valid national estimates of product-related injuries from a probability sample of hospital emergency rooms (ERs) and is the foundation for many CPSC activities. These injury reports not only provide the means for estimating the magnitude of consumer product-related injuries in the United States, but also provide a source for gathering further information concerning the nature and probable cause of accidents. Several foreign governments have modeled their national injury data collection systems after the CPSC’s system. Annually, NEISS supplies more than 380,000 product-related cases from a sample of about 100 hospitals. The hospitals transmit incident information electronically, and in some cases, the data are available within 24 hours after an incident. Table 2 presents data on estimates of injuries associated with consumer products that resulted in hospital ER treatment. Table 3 presents estimates of the percent of such injuries for which the treated individuals were subsequently hospitalized. While the injuries in these tables represent product involvement, that involvement does not necessarily indicate causality.

Cost of Product-Related Injuries (Table 4). To estimate costs of hospital ER-treated, consumer product injuries, the CPSC employs its Revised Injury Cost Model. The costs noted in this report do not include the costs of consumer product-related injuries that were treated elsewhere, such as in physicians’ offices, health maintenance organizations, and freestanding urgent care clinics. Estimates also do not include the economic losses of fatalities associated with the use of consumer products. These losses may be substantial. Furthermore, cost estimates are not available for many acute and chronic illnesses associated with exposure to chemical hazards. The number and costs of these illnesses are expected to be large.

Products are aggregated into 15 product groupings for the deaths, injuries, and cost data presented (see pp. 7–8). These products are described in the NEISS Coding Manual, Directorate for Epidemiology, U.S. CPSC. The NEISS Coding Manual can be found on-line at: <http://www.cpsc.gov/neiss/completemanual.pdf>.

Additional data are collected and analyzed to develop more detailed estimates concerning products for which Commission remedial action has been considered. Based on interviews with victims or witnesses, the Commission identifies causes of incidents, including the interactions among the persons involved, the products, and the environment. Using all of the available data, Commission staff periodically prepares hazard analysis reports for selected products. To learn whether an analysis for any particular product is available, or to receive general injury data reports or more detailed data than are included in this section, please write to:

Table 1 - Deaths Associated With the Use of Certain Consumer ProductsOctober 1, 2006–September 30, 2007

This table presents the latest available estimates of deaths associated with, but not necessarily caused by, the use of consumer products. These estimates are derived from data taken from death certificates that the Commission purchases from the states. The time required for collection and processing varies by state, but the majority of death certificates are received within two years of the date of death.

Table 2 - Estimates of Hospital Emergency Room-Treated Injuries Associated with the Use of Certain Consumer Products

October 1, 2008–September 30, 2009¹

This table presents the estimates of hospital emergency room-treated injuries associated with, but not necessarily caused by, the use of consumer products. It is based on data collected from a statistically representative sample of hospitals as part of the Commission's National Electronic Injury Surveillance System (NEISS). The NEISS hospital sample has been updated periodically to take into account changes that have occurred in the NEISS sampling frame of emergency departments over time (e.g., including hospital emergency departments opened after the initial sampling frame was constructed). In addition, over time, there have been modifications to the definition of in-scope injuries.

SAFETY STANDARDS

The Commission reduces consumer product hazards through the development of mandatory safety standards and staff involvement in the development and strengthening of voluntary safety standards. This section presents:

- mandatory safety standards in effect;
- voluntary safety standards in which staff participated; and
- research activities in which staff participated.

- 1) Mandatory Safety Standards: Mandatory standards are usually developed through rulemaking. If a voluntary standard exists, by law, the Commission may not issue a mandatory standard unless it finds that the voluntary standard will not eliminate or adequately reduce the risk of injury or death or determines that it is unlikely that there will be substantial compliance with the voluntary standard. During the rulemaking process, staff seeks input from all interested parties, including consumers, industry, and other government agencies. The CPSC usually develops performance standards, rather than design standards, to give manufacturers the most flexibility. Examples of products for which mandatory standards are under development include: portable generators, upholstered furniture, recreational off-road vehicles, bed rails, bedside sleepers, infant swings, and play yards.

On August 14, 2008, the President signed the Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act of 2008 (CPSIA) into law. The CPSIA directs the Commission to implement numerous rulemakings and other official Commission actions intended to enhance the safety of consumer products. More than 40 separate rules or rulemaking activities were mandated by the CPSIA. Examples of rulemakings, related rulemaking activities, and official actions mandated or initiated by the CPSIA include: lead content determinations and exclusions; interpretative rules for children's products, children's toys, and a child care article; labeling of consumer products as complying with certification requirements; and consumer registration forms, new safety standards, and accreditation requirements for durable infant or toddler products.

- 2) Voluntary Safety Standards: The CPSC's statutory authority requires it to rely on voluntary standards to build safety into consumer products if the Commission determines that compliance with a voluntary standard is likely to result in the elimination or adequate reduction of the risk of injury identified and finds that there is substantial compliance with the voluntary standard. CPSC staff works with organizations that facilitate the development of voluntary standards. Staff participates in the development of voluntary standards at a number of steps in the process. Staff first submits recommendations for new standards, or modifications of existing standards, to voluntary standards organizations. After receiving CPSC staff recommendations, organizations may conduct technical assessments (as appropriate); publish a proposal for public comment; receive and evaluate comments; or publish a standard. This process may take months to several years. Staff participates in the process by providing expert advice, technical assistance, and information based on data analyses of how deaths, injuries, or incidents occurred. The CPSC's voluntary standards policy does not permit staff to vote on proposed changes or new standards. However, staff's comments are considered throughout the process.

The CPSIA added authority for the Commission, in certain cases, to specify by rule that a product or product class that does not comply with a voluntary standard is a substantial product hazard under the CPSA. This will facilitate obtaining corrective actions when products that do not comply with such voluntary standards are found in commerce. Currently, the Commission is developing rules under this authority.

- 3) Research Activities: CPSC staff conducts and sponsors many research and study projects in furtherance of its activities to improve product safety and reduce or eliminate potential hazards associated with consumer products. The findings from such projects may be used by staff to develop and refine positions on voluntary and mandatory product safety standards. Examples include research on smoke alarms, portable generators, and imported drywall.

Voluntary Standards Adopted in 2010

The following voluntary standards became mandatory in 2010:

- Safety Standard for Infant Bath Seats: Section 104(b) of the CPSIA mandated that the voluntary consumer product safety standard ASTM F 1967-08a shall be a consumer product safety standard (with changes) issued by the Commission under the Consumer Product Safety Act. The Final Rule was published in the Federal Register on June 4, 2010 and became effective on December 6, 2010.
- Safety Standard for Infant Walkers: Section 104(b) of the CPSIA mandated that the voluntary consumer product safety standard ASTM F 977-07 shall be a consumer product safety standard (with changes) issued by the Commission under the Consumer Product Safety Act. The Final Rule was published in the Federal Register on June 21, 2010 and became effective on December 21, 2010.

2) Voluntary Safety Standards

The CPSC issues the Voluntary Standards Tracking and Access Report (VSTAR) on a semi-annual basis. The report includes the objective of each standard under development, the name of the employee leading the activity, and the status of the standard. A summary from the 2010 annual report is provided below for convenience. The Web address for the report is:

<http://www.cpsc.gov/library/foia/foia11/brief/fy10volstds.pdf>

Twenty-five new, revised, or reaffirmed voluntary safety standards, for which CPSC staff provided monitoring or technical support, were completed during the period from October 1, 2009 to September 30, 2010. These voluntary safety standards addressed bassinets and cradles, bath seats, bed rails, bicycles, blind cords, booster seats, chairs (high), cribs (full-size), cribs (non-full-size) and play-yards, garage door operators, heaters (electric), infant bouncers, infant carriers (hand-held), infant gates, infant swings, infant tubs, infant walkers, lighters (two standards), recreational off-road vehicles, soccer goals, strollers, and treestands (three standards).

During the same period, CPSC staff provided technical support (summarized in the VSTAR) or monitored the development of 62 voluntary safety standards. The majority of voluntary standards development activities are managed by three standards development/coordinating organizations: ASTM International (previously called the American Society for Testing and Materials), the American National Standards Institute (ANSI), and Underwriters Laboratories Inc. (UL). These standards provide safety provisions addressing potential hazards associated with consumer products found in homes, schools, and recreational areas.

3) Research Activities

Commission staff conducts studies and investigates deaths, injuries, diseases, and economic costs associated with consumer products. This research is used to identify hazardous products and design effective strategies to reduce product hazards. In 2010, in addition to analytical work conducted in support of standards activities, CPSC staff conducted or participated in the following research:

Animals Used in Testing–Alternative Test Methods

On March 2, 2010, CPSC staff sent a briefing package to the Commission, responding to a request from the Interagency Coordinating Committee on the Validation of Alternative Methods (ICCVAM) regarding alternative test methods that encourage the reduction, refinement, or replacement of the use of animals in testing (i.e., the Murine Local Lymph Node Assay (LLNA) test method). The LLNA is a test method developed to assess the potential of a test substance to induce allergic contact dermatitis in humans. The ICCVAM recommended updates to the test method protocol; establishment of performance standards; and a modified form of the assay, the reduced LLNA. On March 9, 2010, the Commission approved the ICCVAM recommendations. The staff's briefing package is available on the CPSC website at www.cpsc.gov/library/foia/foia10/brief/iccvam.pdf. Staff attended multiple meetings of the ICCVAM. In addition, staff participated in a number of ICCVAM working groups, addressing ocular toxicity, acute toxicity, endocrine disruptors, and immunotoxicity.

Chemical Substances

CPSC staff participated in the Interagency Scientific Review Group (ISRG) of the National Toxicology Program. In 2010, the ISRG reviewed the available data on eight chemical substances and made recommendations on whether to list them in the 12th Report on Carcinogens (RoC). The RoC is an informational scientific and public health document, first ordered by Congress in 1978, that identifies and discusses agents, substances, mixtures, or exposure circumstances that may pose a hazard to human health by virtue of their carcinogenicity.

Chemical Toxicity Assessment

CPSC staff completed a number of toxicity assessments for several key project areas. During an investigation of disposable diapers, staff evaluated the chemical compounds that the manufacturer reported were used in the disposable diapers. The investigation did not reveal any health concerns for the general population but did not rule out the potential for especially sensitive populations. On the topic of cadmium, a report on the potential health effects of cadmium in children's metal jewelry was also completed, and public comments were received. (See also detailed information on drywall and phthalates.)

Children's Sleepwear Test Manual

In July 2010, staff finalized the laboratory test manual for the Standards of Flammability for Children's Sleepwear and announced availability of the manual to industry stakeholders. The manual is available on the CPSC's website at www.cpsc.gov/businfo/sleepwearlab.pdf.

Cigarette Ignition Risk

CPSC staff completed a draft status report on its evaluation comparing the burning characteristics of Reduced Ignition Propensity (RIP) cigarettes to those of conventional cigarettes.

Clothes Dryer Indicators

In 2010, CPSC staff completed a draft report of its assessment on the possible use of indicators to inform consumers of clothes dryer operational status. Staff reviewed literature on various indicators (audible and visual) and how they might be applied to inform users of the need for action, such as periodic maintenance (including cleaning lint from inside the dryer compartment or dryer ducting) or servicing by authorized repair personnel to replace failed components that could cause overheating conditions.

Consumer Opinion Forum

In 2010, staff finalized its report on the results of the Ground Fault Circuit Interrupter (GFCI) receptacle survey and posted the report on the CPSC's website at www.cpsc.gov/library/foia/foia10/os/gfci.pdf. The staff also launched a clothes dryer maintenance survey, posted the draft report of the survey results on the CPSC's website for public comment, and finalized the report on the survey results. The final report is available on the CPSC's website at www.cpsc.gov/library/foia/foia10/os/clothesdryer.pdf. Finally, staff prepared a new survey on televisions and hazards associated with television tipovers and sought approval to launch the survey.

Drywall Investigation

Staff prepared and published reports on the results of technical studies related to drywall, such as elemental and chemical analysis; emissions testing in controlled chambers; indoor air testing of affected and control homes; corrosion and metallurgical analyses of electrical, fuel gas distribution, and fire safety components; results of microbiological testing of drywall; and results of a study of identification methods for problem drywall based on source marker evaluations. These reports are available on www.DrywallResponse.gov.

Electrocution Annual Data Update

CPSC staff completed the annual report, 2007 Electrocutions Associated with Consumer Products, in September 2010, and submitted it for clearance.

Indoor Air Quality Database

Staff assessed the utility of four primary CPSC databases in providing indoor air quality information and identifying health hazards. The four databases included: the Death Certificate Database (DTHS), the In-Depth Investigation Database (INDP), the Injury and Potential Injury Incident Database (IPII), and the National Electronic Injury Surveillance System (NEISS). Searches were performed for two specific chemicals and two specific products; and subject area experts analyzed the data to distinguish indoor air hazards from other hazards found in these databases. A draft report was completed by staff and concluded that while data are limited, when information is available, it is possible to identify health effects.

Lead

- Lead Content Determinations and Exclusions

In 2010, staff received a request from the Polyurethane Foam Association for a Commission determination on whether polyurethane foam products contain lead in concentrations that exceed the 100 ppm lead content limit. Staff drafted a memorandum with recommendations to the Commission.

- Lead in Paint

Staff prepared a draft status report on the development of a standard reference material and the effectiveness of X-Ray Fluorescence (XRF) technology and other alternative technologies for the measurement of lead in paint. The draft memorandum addresses the effectiveness of a new method, energy dispersive XRF using multiple monochromatic excitation beams. This method can be used for determining the amount of lead in paint and similar coatings, according to ASTM

International F2853-10, if appropriate reference materials are used for calibration and verification.

Nanotechnology

- Nanotechnology Annual Data Update (Consumer Product Database)

Staff contracted for three reports that present data on the commercialization of nanomaterials and the specific products that contain these compounds. Based on these reports and other information, staff completed an internal report that identifies key areas where nanomaterials have been incorporated into consumer products. The report also describes staff activities in nanotechnology, including the development of an internal database that lists specific products and the materials contained in the products. The staff has also completed a classification scheme for these products based on their potential use and exposure potential.

- Nanomaterials in Aerosol Products

Staff received a status report from the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) on their evaluation of aerosols released from a spray product. The investigation is expected to be completed and a final report submitted to staff in early 2011. Based on the interim results, staff expects to continue this work to test similar products, which will provide greater understanding of the potential health impacts of these products.

- Nanosilver in Consumer (Children's) Products

The CPSC entered into new Interagency Agreements with both NIOSH and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for evaluating potential exposures to consumers from use of nanosilver-enabled products. CPSC staff received interim reports from both NIOSH and the EPA. A literature review was completed and included in the EPA's interim report. The interim reports describe the specific products that have been tested thus far, the analytical techniques used to test for the presence of silver, and the results of the testing. The results presented in the interim reports suggest that many, but not all, tested products contain measurable quantities of silver. Additional testing will provide information on the characteristics of the silver contained in these products.

Nursery Equipment Annual Update

In 2010, CPSC staff completed the annual report, Nursery Product-Related Injuries and Deaths among Children under Age Five. In accordance with Section 104(b) of the Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act (CPSIA) of 2008, staff also conducted analyses to characterize injury and fatality numbers and hazard patterns associated with toddler beds, bassinets/infant hammocks, full-size and non-full-size cribs, and portable youth bedrails. The memoranda documenting these analyses are available to the public in notice of proposed rulemaking packages.

Pediatric Poisoning

Staff conducted an in-depth review of deaths addressable by Poison Prevention Packaging Act (PPPA) regulation and completed an internal mortality report using the CPSC data. It was determined that we could not produce a more accurate number because the data were not complete. Staff recommended changes for data acquisition and incident investigation to improve future mortality reports. CPSC staff completed the annual report, Pediatric Poisoning Fatalities from 1972 through 2007, regarding children under five years of age. This report incorporates the National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS) mortality data. The report is available on the CPSC website at www.cpsc.gov/library/foia/foia10/os/pppa2010.pdf. Staff also completed an annual injury report.

Phthalates and Phthalate Alternatives

The CPSC announced on December 23, 2009, that it appointed seven scientists to a Chronic Hazard Advisory Panel (CHAP) on phthalates. The first meeting of the CHAP was April 14–15, 2010, followed by a second meeting July 26–28, 2010. The CHAP heard testimony from the public on July 26, 2010. In support of the CHAP, staff prepared nine reports on the health effects and exposures to phthalates and phthalate substitutes. A contractor completed two reports, one on phthalate substitutes, and another on phthalate exposure. A third contractor report was in progress. The staff and contract reports are available at www.cpsc.gov/about/cpsia/chap0410.html. Also, staff completed a toxicity review of banned phthalates that was initiated in 2009.

Pool Submersion Annual Data Update

CPSC staff completed the annual report, Pool and Spa Submersion: Estimated Injuries and Reported Fatalities, 2010 Report. The report is available on the CPSC's website at www.cpsc.gov/library/foia/foia10/os/poolsb2010.pdf.

Portable Pool Protection

CPSC staff worked with industrial engineering students at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. The collaboration resulted in the development of three prototype designs for submersion prevention barriers, one of which was modeled using readily available parts. The pilot designs will be discussed at the next meeting for the portable pool standard (ASTM F2666).

Portable Generators

Staff drafted an interim report on the results of the development and durability testing of a prototype low CO-emission portable generator. The draft interim report includes staff's preliminary health assessment of a limited set of test results obtained from generator testing in the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) test house. The results from the NIST test house were completed in July 2010, and staff's analyses of the test results continued.

Sleep Environment Hazards

Staff reviewed incidents related to infant sleep environments and designed a probe that potentially could be used to identify hazardous gaps. From an educational standpoint, the candidate probe was deemed less practical than the current recommendation of using two fingers to measure a gap. Staff will continue to recommend teaching consumers to use two fingers to identify hazardous gaps. Staff prepared a draft report of this investigation that explains the rationale.

Smoke Alarms (Nuisance Alarms)

In 2010, staff completed its draft report on in-home testing of smoke alarms to evaluate nuisance alarms associated with cooking. The staff's evaluation considered, among other things, smoke alarm technology type, mode of cooking activity (e.g., frying), the effects of using an exhaust fan during cooking, and the distance of the smoke alarm from the main cooking appliance in a kitchen. The report includes a literature review of the most common types of nuisance alarms associated with cooking, types of sensors used in smoke alarms, nuisance alarms from noncooking sources, cooking patterns in the United States, and the requirements for smoke alarm installations in residences. The final report, Smoke Alarms—Pilot Study of Nuisance Alarms Associated with Cooking (March 2010), is available on the CPSC's website at www.cpsc.gov/library/foia/foia10/os/smokealarmnuisance.pdf. CPSC staff presented a paper reporting the results of this study at the Suppression, Detection and Signaling Research and Applications Technical Working Conference, SUPDET 2010. The paper is available on the CPSC's website at www.cpsc.gov/library/foia/foia10/os/smokealarm.pdf. Data from the staff's report was used to support changes to the National Fire Protection Association's National Fire Alarm and Signaling Code (NFPA 72, 2010 Edition) to improve guidance on smoke alarm installations near cooking appliances. In addition, data and test results were used as a basis for development of a testing program to investigate nuisance alarms associated with cooking fumes, which will be conducted by the National Institute of Standards and Technology.

Spray Foam Insulation

In 2010, staff completed a draft memorandum that reviews the potential health effects of chemicals that may be used in spray foam products. Staff has received new information on compounds that may be released from foam, and this new information is being incorporated into the draft memorandum. A federal working group led by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) compiled information on best practices for installing spray foam and placed this information on the EPA's design for the environment (DFE) website at www.epa.gov/dfe/pubs/projects/spf/spray_polyurethane_foam.html. The website contains a link to the CPSC incident reporting system.

Table Saws (Blade Guards)

Staff completed the report, Human Factors Evaluation of Technology Intended to Address Blade-Contact Injuries with Table Saws, in September 2010. The report is currently in the agency's clearance process, and staff expects the report to be published in 2011.

Toys

- Toys Annual Update

In 2010, CPSC staff completed its annual report, Toy-Related Deaths and Injuries, Calendar Year 2009, and it is now undergoing agency clearance.

- Toys Not Elsewhere Classified

In January 2010, a new toy coding system was established. The new coding system allows for the separation of toys that are completely unspecified from toys that are specified, but not among the list with available product codes. Prior to the new coding system, both groups of toys were coded "Toys, Not Elsewhere Classified." In order to gather more detailed information on the toys that are completely unspecified, a NEISS-based special study was designed and implemented in July 2010. The special study will cover a six-month period, and analysis of the special study will be concluded in 2011.

- Toy Standard Evaluations—ASTM F963: Specific Toys, Components, and Risks Evaluation

As mandated by the CPSIA, CPSC staff reviewed ASTM F963, Standard Consumer Safety Specification for Toy Safety, and completed a report addressing six hazard areas on May 10, 2010. The report is available at www.cpsc.gov/volstd/toys/f963_05102010.pdf. Staff shared a copy of this report with ASTM F963 subcommittee members. The ASTM subcommittee was scheduled to discuss the report and select priorities for future revisions at a November 2010 subcommittee meeting.

- Toy Standard Evaluations—ASTM F963: Toxicological Review

Staff received a report from a contractor on July 16, 2010, which reviewed toxicity peer-reviewed literature published since 1999, for seven metals and completed toxicity assessments for four metals including: arsenic, chromium, mercury, and selenium. CPSC staff completed toxicity reviews for the remaining three metals: antimony, barium, and cadmium. The assessments included preliminary limits for intake into the body. They also included a direct comparison of the preliminary intake levels and the current levels used in the ASTM F963 standard. Staff has completed a draft status report that provides an introduction and background for the contractor report and the toxicity assessments done by the staff.

Upholstered Furniture

The National Institute of Standards and Technology provided CPSC staff with Standard Reference Material cigarettes and completed the initial phase development of a standard foam substrate for use in possible revisions to the proposed rule. The proposed rule is for flammability standards for residential upholstered furniture under the Flammable Fabrics Act. In addition, staff completed the planned small-scale and large-scale smolder testing and recommended additional tests in support of possible revisions to the proposed rule.

Vehicles

- All Terrain Vehicles (ATVs)

CPSC staff monitored work under an agreement with the U.S. Army Aberdeen Test Center (ATC) to test and evaluate nine adult- and transitional-size ATVs. CPSC staff provided the ATVs used in the testing, and ATC staff provided the test environment, as well as all instrumentation and the methodology needed for data collection, data processing, and data reduction. CPSC staff regularly visited the ATC to observe the testing. The ATC was also asked to determine whether there are characteristics of certain models that make them more stable or less incident prone than other models. CPSC staff will evaluate the test results as part of its work on completing the rulemaking that was initiated with an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (ANPR) in 2005, and a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPR) in 2006. Staff will include its evaluation in a briefing package that is scheduled to be submitted to the Commission in 2011. Staff also completed the 2009 Annual Report of ATV-Related Deaths and Injuries in September 2010.

- Recreational Off-Highway Vehicles (ROVs)

Staff conducted extensive testing and evaluation of various model ROVs in 2010. Under an Interagency Agreement with the U.S. Army Aberdeen Test Center (ATC), the ATC tested four popular model ROVs. The test program included static and dynamic testing, which will be used to evaluate lateral stability and vehicle handling. Dynamic testing will also measure minimum lateral acceleration at vehicle rollover. CPSC staff drafted a report on the preliminary analysis of the test results of the four popular ROV models. Staff also awarded a contract to conduct static and dynamic testing of nine ROV models. This information is available at www.cpsc.gov/library/foia/foia10/contracts/CPSC-S-10-0014.pdf. The test results provide comprehensive information on the characteristics of the vehicles that make up the current ROV market. Staff also awarded a contract to conduct two pilot studies addressing occupant protection performance of ROVs, using sled test methods. The results of the pilot studies will be used to develop the test protocol for a full-scale test and evaluation program to assess the occupant protection performance of nine vehicles that make up the current ROV market.

- ROV/Multipurpose Off-Highway Utility Vehicle (MUV)/ATV Data Collection Refinement

In 2010, CPSC staff conducted a special study to determine how ATVs, ROVs, and MUVs are currently coded within the CPSC's National Electronic Injury Surveillance System (NEISS) databases; completed design of the survey instrument, which is in the final phase of the design process for the special study; and initiated the collection of data through telephone surveys. All injuries recorded in NEISS related to all terrain vehicles and utility vehicles occurring from January 1, 2010 to August 31, 2010, were part of this study.

Vented Gas Appliances CO Sensors

CPSC staff completed a draft report on the results of tests conducted by a contractor to evaluate the longevity and durability of sensors used in a gas furnace application. Gas-fired heating appliances continue to be a leading cause of unintentional CO poisoning deaths. The report is expected to be finalized in 2011.

COMPLIANCE AND ENFORCEMENT

The CPSC learns about potential product defects from many sources, including incident reports, consumer complaints, the agency's Hotline, and the website. In addition, firms are required legally to report potential product hazards or violations of standards to the Commission. The Commission works with companies to remove products from the marketplace when they violate mandatory safety standards or are defective and create a substantial risk of injury. This section presents:

- Voluntary recall orders taken by importers or manufacturers;
- Letters of Advice to importers and manufacturers; and
- Commission determinations and judicial actions.

- 1) Voluntary Recall Orders Taken by Importers or Manufacturers: Headquarters and field staff identify defective products not covered by regulations through their own investigations of potential product defects. In addition, firms, by law, are required to report potential product hazards or violations of standards to the Commission. When a recall is necessary, compliance staff negotiates with the responsible firm. In 2010, CPSC staff completed 427 cooperative recalls (100 percent voluntary) of products that either violated mandatory standards or were defective and presented a substantial risk of injury to the public. If a firm refuses to recall a product voluntarily, the CPSC may litigate to require a recall. This section lists the voluntary recalls performed by companies to address possible hazards in 2010.

The CPSC developed the Fast Track program to streamline the process of recalls for firms that were willing and prepared to recall their products quickly. Because every defective product presents a risk of injury or death, removing hazardous products from the marketplace faster can prevent more injuries and save lives. Last year, 237 of 427 recalls were under the Fast Track program. Recalls under the Fast Track program are conducted without the need for time-consuming hazard analyses. In 2010, Fast Track Recalls were initiated within 20 days of a firm's report to the CPSC 95 percent of the time.

- 2) Letters of Advice to Importers or Manufacturers: Imported products are screened at the port by either the CPSC or in coordination with U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP). For all products regulated by the CPSC, the Commission issues a Letter of Advice (LOA) when there is a violation of a mandatory standard. It advises the company of the violation and the nature of the necessary corrective action (to correct future production (CFP); to stop sale and CFP; or to recall, stop sale, and CFP). This section lists the LOAs sent to importers and manufacturers in 2010, where the Commission received a response from the company confirming the violation; the Commission decided that the company completed a voluntary correction agreed upon for the company to remedy the hazard; or the CBP seized the product at the port.
- 3) Commission Determinations and Judicial Actions: When companies knowingly fail to report potential product hazards or violations of standards to the Commission, as required, the CPSC can seek civil penalties in U.S. courts. In 2010, the CPSC negotiated out-of-court settlements in which five companies voluntarily agreed to pay $1.85 million in civil penalties to the U.S. Treasury. In addition, one federal court settlement resulted in a civil penalty of $2.05 million to the Treasury. Other tools used for enforcement include legal action under either section 12 or section 15(c) or 15(d); federal court actions pursuant to the statutes that the CPSC administers; and pursuit of criminal cases, where appropriate. Enforcement and litigation activities are listed in several tables in this section of the report.

1) Voluntary Recall Orders Taken by Importers or Manufacturers

Headquarters and field staff identify defective products not covered by regulations through their investigations of potential product defects. In addition, firms are required by law to report potential product hazards or violations of standards to the Commission. When a recall is necessary, Compliance staff negotiates with the responsible firm. In 2010, CPSC staff completed 427 cooperative recalls (100 percent voluntary) of products that either violated mandatory standards or were defective and presented a substantial risk of injury to the public. If a firm refuses to recall a product voluntarily, the CPSC may litigate to require a recall. This section lists the voluntary recalls performed by companies to address possible hazards in FY 2010.

3) Commission Determinations and Judicial Actions

When companies knowingly fail to report potential product hazards or violations of standards to the Commission, as required under section 15 of the CPSA, the CPSC can seek civil penalties. The Commission has the authority to compromise any civil penalty or file suit in federal court seeking a civil penalty. In 2010, the CPSC negotiated out of court settlements in which five companies voluntarily agreed to pay $1.85 million in civil penalties to the U.S. Treasury. In addition, one federal court settlement resulted in a civil penalty of $2.05 million to the U.S. Treasury.

Congress has given the Commission enhanced enforcement authority, including legal action under section 12 (to declare a product an imminently hazardous consumer product) or section 15(c) or 15(d) of the CPSA (to protect the public from products that present a substantial product hazard or order a recall or other corrective action as appropriate, respectively). The Act that the Commission enforces also provides for the pursuit of criminal actions against the worst or repeat offenders. Enforcement and litigation activities of the Commission are listed in several tables below.

Commission Determined Further Action - Section 15 of the CPSA

There were no instances in 2010 where the Commission took action under section 15(c) or 15(d) of the CPSA. All product recalls in 2010 were initiated through voluntary compliance.

Commission Determined Imminent Hazards - Section 12 of the CPSA

There were no instances in 2010 where the Commission took action under section 12 of the CPSA. All product recalls in 2010 were initiated through voluntary compliance.

PUBLIC OUTREACH

The Commission warns the public about product-related hazards through print, electronic, radio and broadcast media, its Hotline, websites, and other outreach activities. The Commission also meets with stakeholders to discuss matters related to the mission of the CPSC. This section presents information on many of the activities used to provide safety information to consumers and industry in 2010 through:

- consumer outreach;
- dissemination of technical information; and
- cooperation between Commission officials and stakeholders.

1) Consumer Outreach: The CPSC alerts the public through recall alerts, print and video news releases, public service announcements, publications, national and local television appearances, the CPSC Hotline, and listservs. The CPSC communicates with the public through various electronic venues, including:

- the CPSC's websites (www.CPSC.gov, www.Recalls.gov, www.ATVSafety.gov, www.PoolSafely.gov);
- the CPSIA Web page www.CPSC.gov/about/CPSIA/CPSIA.html);
- the OnSafety blog (www.CPSC.gov/OnSafety);
- social media sites (YouTube, Twitter, Flickr).

The CPSC also alerts the public through other outreach activities, such as the Neighborhood Safety Network (NSN). This is a grassroots program that provides timely, lifesaving information to about 3,600 organizations and individuals who, in turn, share CPSC safety posters and news alerts with underserved consumers who otherwise might be unlikely to hear or receive information from the CPSC.

The “Drive to One Million” campaign was started in 2007. This effort uses several different Commission tools to make the public aware that there are still many recalled products in the public’s hands. The goal is to have at least one million consumers sign up to receive free, potentially life-saving information electronically through the CPSC’s email notification system or other social media platforms, such as Twitter, Facebook, and YouTube. Consumers can sign up to receive instant notice of recall information at www.cpsc.gov/cpsclist.aspx. Currently, more than 300,000 consumers are part of our Drive to One Million campaign.

The number of visits to the CPSC’s website, www.CPSC.gov, has grown rapidly from about 200,000 visits in 1997, to more than 53.6 million visits in 2010. The increase is due in part to the new CPSC 2.0 social media initiative, including YouTube, Twitter, Flickr, the OnSafety blog, and the recall-sharing tool widget. In 2010, the CPSC made available for the first time a widget, a Web-based tool that third parties can feature on their Web pages that displays brief summaries of the latest CPSC safety information. The presence of the CPSC widget on other organizations’ Web pages accounted for an additional 42.8 million views of CPSC safety information.

While the CPSC’s website, www.CPSC.gov, was recently enhanced to widen and speed public access to important safety information, it is in need of a long overdue redesign, which was developed in 2010, and is scheduled to be launched in 2011. The redesign will enhance the user experience, improve search functionality, and streamline the content management and posting process.

The Hotline is a toll-free service that allows consumers to report product complaints or product-related injuries, learn about recalls and safety hazards, and obtain safety publications.

The National Injury Information Clearinghouse provides data to the public in response to about 1,200 requests each year. It also alerts manufacturers to potential hazards associated with their products, providing them with consumer complaints, reported incidents, and incident investigations involving their products.

In December 2008, the Virginia Graeme Baker Pool and Spa Safety Act (VGB), which addresses the hazards of child drowning and drain entrapment, became effective. In 2010, the CPSC awarded a contract to develop and implement a comprehensive information and education campaign that teaches pool and spa safety steps that stress prevention of drowning and entrapment by engaging stakeholders as partners at the national and grassroots levels. Child safety experts work on public and residential drowning prevention programs for parents and children, and industry organizations share VGB compliance information with pool and spa owners and operators.

- 2) Dissemination of Technical Information: As part of the CPSC's research activities and other support work, the Commission develops many technical reports and presentations to present findings and share ideas. These documents are very useful to other researchers and industry. The reports listed in this section were developed in 2010, and are located on the CPSC's website.
- 3) Cooperation between Commission Officials and External Stakeholders: In the course of the year, the Commissioners and staff at the CPSC held meetings with consumers, industry, and the public on matters related to the mission of the CPSC. A list of meetings of "substantial interest" for 2010 is provided in this report. CPSC's Meetings Policy defines "substantial interest" as "any issue that is likely to be the subject of a regulatory or policy decision by the Commission." The Meetings Policy requires CPSC staff and Commissioners to: (1) announce meetings in advance on the Public Calendar; (2) hold meetings that are open to the public unless certain specified exceptions apply; and (3) submit meeting summaries to the Office of the Secretary. For copies of the Public Calendar visit: www.cpsc.gov/calmenu.html.

(For more detail, visit the electronic version on the CPSC website at www.cpsc.gov/cpscpub/pubs/reports/2010rpt.pdf or follow the link.)

Informed the public about the Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act (CPSIA) through:

Updating the CPSIA website: Staff regularly updated the CPSIA website to reflect rulemaking activity of the Commission and other similar activities related to the CPSIA, including posting Federal Register notices, briefing packages, ballot vote summaries, and webcasts of public meetings.

Developing Guidance: Staff completed 10 guidance documents or advisory opinions on the application of the CPSIA to current industry practices. The CPSC currently offers two handbooks on recalls and eight guidebooks of recall information. Further information on the topic can be found at www.cpsc.gov/businfo/corrective.html.

Producing Public or Webcast meetings: Staff spoke during 13 meetings (public or via webcast) to address the many questions the CPSC receives about the CPSIA and facilitate an open dialogue with stakeholders locally and throughout the world.

Supporting Small Business: Webinars were posted on the CPSC's website to aid small businesses in complying with the new legislation and the CPSC's enforcement policies. Working in conjunction with the Etsy community and the Handmade Toy Alliance, CPSC staff conducted a webinar for small businesses that manufacture toys and children's products. The webinar was held to walk small business representatives through the Compliance Guide on the CPSIA and to field questions.

Alerted the public to imported consumer product hazards through:

Consumer Outreach: In 2010, the CPSC secured an estimated 1.8 billion views with safety messages related to imports through recall news releases, press conferences, a town hall meeting, and from the U.S.-China Consumer Product Safety Summit. The increased exposure was due to the CPSC's reach via Twitter, YouTube, the OnSafety blog, online news media, and due to extensive media coverage and video news releases related to Chinese drywall and crib, stroller, infant sling, and toy recalls.

Public Information Efforts on Imports: The CPSC conducted numerous interviews, issued press releases, posted dozens of tweets, and conducted a news conference to make the public aware of hazardous products made overseas or to warn the public of potential dangers from imports. From Chinese-made fireworks and drywall to recalled electronics and children's jewelry, the CPSC communicated with consumers on a weekly basis about the proactive steps being taken to stop dangerous imports from entering the marketplace, as well as the swift action being taken to pull defective products from store shelves.

In April 2010, Chairman Inez Tenenbaum joined with U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) Commissioner Alan Bersin to conduct a signing ceremony and press event regarding a new memorandum of understanding (MOU) giving the CPSC full access to the Import Safety Commercial Targeting and Analysis Center (CTAC). The MOU gives the CPSC the capability to conduct import safety risk assessments and perform targeting work using the CBP's Automated Commercial System to try to reduce the flow of dangerous products into the United States.

Outreach on Emerging Hazard with Imported Drywall: The CPSC and its federal partners developed an online Drywall Information Center (www.DrywallResponse.gov), which provides the latest information on technical developments, news about the investigation, monthly updates, and a way for homeowners to report incidents to the CPSC. Additionally, the CPSC established an email distribution (listserv) to disseminate noteworthy developments directly to interested parties.

Alerted the public to fire-related hazards through:

Consumer Outreach: The CPSC secured an estimated 447 million views of our safety messages related to fire hazards, including messages on holiday cooking, holiday decorating, fireworks, and various recalls involving fire hazards. Outreach included press releases, PSAs, Tweets, and video news releases.

Public Information Efforts:

Fireworks - In June 2010, the CPSC partnered with the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA); U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP); and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) for a joint fireworks safety news conference on the National Mall. The corresponding video news release (VNR) was covered by all major networks and was seen by an estimated 37 million consumers. The CPSC continued the warning through social media with an "On Safety" blog, Tweets and Flickr postings of photographs taken during the news event, capturing dramatic demonstrations of reenacted fireworks incidents.

Halloween - In October 2009, the CPSC distributed a news release warning consumers about burn and laceration hazards that occur during Halloween celebrations. The CPSC cautioned that using inherently flame-resistant fabrics in homemade costumes and battery-operated candles instead of open-flame candles when decorating the house can prevent fire and burn incidents. An "On Safety" 60-second video was posted to the CPSC YouTube site and promoted to the news media.

Holiday Hazards - In December 2009, the CPSC offered consumers 10 tips to keep their holidays fire- and injury-free. A news release was issued warning consumers of the thousands of holiday-related injuries that occur each year from November to January. An "On Safety" blog was posted to the CPSC website. In addition, a 60-second video was posted to the CPSC YouTube site.

Home Heating - In December 2009, the CPSC issued a news release warning consumers of the dangers associated with home heating. As the winter months approached, the CPSC warned consumers that carbon monoxide poisonings were on the rise and provided safety tips to prevent needless tragedies. The following January, during severe East Coast snow storms, the CPSC posted a blog to "On Safety," reiterating the "dos and don'ts" of home heating.

Smoke Alarms - In fall 2009, the CPSC promoted smoke alarm usage with a blog post on the "On Safety" site. The safety message was posted during the fall daylight saving time change with a "Change Your Clock, Change Your Batteries" theme. The commission continued the theme in the spring, by issuing a news release to support smoke alarm use. Staff contributed information on the effectiveness of different technologies used in smoke alarms for the www.FireSafety.gov website.

Alerted the public to carbon monoxide (CO) hazards through:

Consumer Outreach: In 2010, the CPSC secured an estimated 67.9 million views of our CO messaging through newspaper stories, social media outreach, TV appearances, and interviews.

Public Information Efforts:

Carbon Monoxide Alarms - In 2010, the CPSC posted two public service announcements on YouTube, one in English and one in Spanish, reminding consumers to “Change Your Clocks, Change Your Batteries” in conjunction with daylight saving time.

Carbon Monoxide Poster Project - In 2010, staff developed contest rules and judging criteria for a CO home safety poster contest. This contest was developed for middle school students, as the topic is well-suited for the curriculum and for science fairs associated with these grade levels. Staff promoted the contest in conjunction with the White House and the General Services Administration’s launch of www.Challenge.gov, which is a site for all federal government-supported contests. Staff began the promotion of the CO safety contest with the help of the fire safety industry, home safety partners, youth clubs, and state departments of education and health, and sent the information directly to school districts in Florida, Texas, Ohio, and Michigan, which has the highest number of CO deaths in the United States. The contest is featured on the CPSC’s website at www.cpsc.gov/info/co/index.html.

Home Heating - In 2010, the CPSC issued a press release urging caution with home heating as winter weather arrived and warning about CO deaths. The press release urged consumers to have a yearly professional inspection of all fuel-burning appliances, including furnaces.

Natural Disaster Preparedness - In 2010, the CPSC communicated with consumers through social media on Twitter at the beginning of hurricane season in June, to remind them about proper generator use. The CPSC also launched a coordinated effort with the U.S. Fire Administration to identify and plan distribution of safety materials to disaster first responders.

Portable Gas Generators - In 2010, the CPSC communicated with consumers through the distribution of safety publications and social media on Twitter at the beginning of hurricane season in June, to remind them about proper generator use.

Alerted the public to children’s and other hazards through:

Consumer Outreach: In 2010, the CPSC secured an estimated 1.6 billion views of our safety messages about children’s products and other hazards, including pool safety, toy safety, and known risks to minority populations.

Public Information Efforts:

Drive to One Million - In 2010, CPSC staff worked throughout the year to generate additional members for the Commission’s email notification system to receive recall alerts. Staff signed up new members by attending local fairs, national safety events, working with the media to promote the free service, and working with stakeholders to encourage their members to register. In addition, the CPSC used its Twitter account to disseminate recall information and encourage followers to sign up for email alerts. The CPSC added nearly 1,000 new members through its participation in minority outreach activities, and attracted 5,000 followers to its Twitter account where they can receive recall information. Currently, approximately 300,000 consumers are part of our Drive to One Million campaign.

All-Terrain Vehicle (ATV) Safety - In 2010, to promote ATV safety, the website was updated on a biweekly basis with death and injury data, news items, industry developments, and changes to state laws. CPSC staff carried out an ATV rapid response program advocating safe riding practices in the aftermath of fatalities. The program, which resulted in contact with dozens of reporters and editors, is designed to respond to breaking news with information, materials, and data about product safety. The CPSC used blogs and Tweets to promote ATV safety and issued a Memorial Day news release that presented compelling facts about the sharp rise in ATV deaths each spring for children under 15 years old.

Bicycle/Helmet Safety - In 2010, to communicate the importance of bike helmet usage, the CPSC reiterated the message several times during the year. Helmet safety tips were issued in a news release and blog posting during the CPSC's holiday toy safety news event. Tweets on helmet safety were issued during the year.

In-Home Drowning Prevention - In 2010, staff communicated to consumers about in-home drowning safety on several levels. In October 2009, the CPSC distributed a news release warning consumers of the dangers of in-home drowning related to bathtubs, bath seats, and buckets. Parents and caregivers were encouraged to never leave children unattended and to stay within arms' reach during bath time. The in-home drowning message was also communicated through social media via Tweets and in an "On Safety" blog post.

Poison Prevention - During Poison Prevention Week 2010, the CPSC partnered with the Poison Prevention Week Council to take safety messages to the social media environment. The CPSC distributed a media advisory announcing the effort. The child-resistant packaging and other prevention safety messages and images were posted on the Council's Facebook page, and daily Tweets were issued by the Council and the CPSC. Staff continued the poison prevention outreach effort during the year, with updates on the Council's Facebook page.

Product Tipovers - In 2010, staff sent dramatic video in DVD format on product tipovers to grassroots organizations and 95 NEISS hospitals. The CPSC's Spanish-speaking spokeswoman conducted interviews with Univision and Telemundo's most popular news shows, reaching hundreds of thousands of families. Staff issued a revised version of the previously recorded dramatic video on YouTube and made a 20-second version available through smart phone texting, reaching 5,000 consumers during a one-month period. Staff issued a revised version of an NSN poster with powerful data: "On average, one child dies every two weeks when a TV, furniture or an appliance falls on him." The CPSC partnered with Goodwill Industries and other secondhand stores to disseminate posters and worked with Walmart and Target to have the public service announcement placed on the websites of these retail stores.

Safe Sleep - In 2010, CPSC Chairman Inez Tenenbaum placed a high priority on "safe sleep" outreach and education efforts in accordance with findings from the CPSC's Early Warning System (EWS) related to nursery products, specifically cribs, play yards, and bassinets. Through a targeted information and education campaign, the CPSC has released and publicized over the past few years recalls involving nearly 10 million cribs. CPSC staff produced new safety materials, including materials targeting new and expectant parents and caregivers through the Neighborhood Safety Network (NSN). NSN members were sent posters featuring sleeping babies of various ethnic backgrounds and also distributed a variety of safe sleep warnings and safety alerts, including warnings regarding infant slings, drop-side cribs, and sleep positioners. To ensure that families had current and accurate safety messages relating to safe sleep environments, the CPSC worked with morning TV shows that reached more than six million viewers and parenting publications, such as Babytalk magazine; conducted print and radio interviews; and posted numerous blog stories and YouTube videos demonstrating the hazards associated with defective cribs. Through Associated Press wire stories of keynote addresses to the International Consumer Product Safety and Health Organization and the Juvenile Products Manufacturers Association, the CPSC generated national press coverage of Chairman Tenenbaum's leadership to promote "safe sleep" for all babies through regulatory and corrective actions. The CPSC also worked in cooperation with safety advocacy groups on the grassroots level, including Safe Kids USA, Keeping Babies Safe, the American Academy of Pediatrics, the National Urban League, various community groups, and state and local government agencies to help disseminate the crib safety and safe sleep messages. Finally, the CPSC began the production of a safe sleep video targeted at new and expectant parents that will be distributed through hospitals and pediatricians' offices in cooperation with Keeping Babies Safe and the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Safety Publication Update - In 2010, staff updated three safety publications: Older Brass Gas Connectors Safety Alert No. 5135, Ground Fault Circuit Interrupter Fact Sheet No. 099, and Older Consumer Safety Checklist No. 701 (Spanish).

Smart Holiday Shopping / Toy Safety - On November 17, 2009, Chairman Tenenbaum hosted a "Town Hall on Toy Safety" event at the Times Square Toys "R" Us in New York City to launch the holiday toy season with information related to toy safety hazards and requirements. The event was cohosted by the chief executive officer of Toys "R" Us and the general counsel for Safe Kids USA. In addition, CPSC staff conducted various toy safety interviews with media; distributed toy safety materials and recall notices, including recalls of several million Fisher-Price infant toys; and informed consumers through press releases, media outlets, mom-focused blogs, and use of the Neighborhood Safety Network. The CPSC also added information on its website about the CPSIA and toy regulations, and partnered with children's advocacy organizations, such as Keeping Babies Safe and Safe Kids, to distribute toy safety materials.

Window Covering Safety - In 2010, staff communicated a new Commission recommendation regarding installing cordless blinds in any home where there is a young child, through a new PSA posted on YouTube, a new safety alert, a new NSN message, and Tweets. In addition, in December 2009, the CPSC announced the recall of more than 50 million shades/blinds. The recall received extensive national network broadcast news, radio, and newsprint coverage and provided an opportunity to disseminate this new message again.

Informed the public about Pool and Spa Safety through:

Consumer Outreach: In 2010, the CPSC's Pool Safely campaign messages totaled more than 250⁸ million views, which were generated from print articles, online stories, local television broadcasts, e-publications through the CPSC's website, the production and dissemination of a high-value TV PSA, and numerous print articles and online stories. Also, significant additional views were made via Twitter, Flickr, and YouTube. Metro transit stations in the District of Columbia displayed five illuminated posters, which generated 1.7 million views in September

⁸ The number of views reported here is higher than the number reported for the same period in the 2010 Performance and Accountability Report (November 2010), due to additional data received by the CPSC after publication.

2010, and billboards with PoolSafely campaign messages were placed on streets and highways in Arizona, California, and other states.

Conducted a Nationwide Public Information and Education Campaign: In 2010, the CPSC awarded a contract to develop and implement an information and education campaign to fulfill the requirements of the Virginia Grame Baker Pool and Spa Safety Act (VGB). The comprehensive PoolSafely campaign teaches pool and spa safety steps that stress prevention of drowning and entrapment by engaging stakeholders as partners at the national and grassroots levels. Child safety experts work on public and residential drowning prevention programs for parents and children, and industry organizations share VGB compliance information with pool and spa owners and operators.

Increased Industry and Consumer Awareness of Pool and Spa Safety: In 2010, the CPSC developed educational materials and designed a national media campaign, which included the following materials: brochures, posters, billboards, and print PSAs in both English and Spanish; fact sheets; advertising specialties, such as fans and sunglasses; educational videos in eight segments; Metro transit station illuminated poster displays; video PSAs; and a PoolSafely tool kit of materials and guidance.

Targeted Outreach for Minorities and High-Risk Families and Communities: During 2010, CPSC staff worked with a contractor on events targeting minorities and high-risk families. These events included: focus groups, program announcement press conferences, and events in minority communities in Houston, Texas and Washington, DC. At these events, participating groups included organizations such as Safe Kids, the American Red Cross, the YMCA, and local organizations like Bria's House, which provides swimming lessons to underprivileged children.

Developed PoolSafely Website: In 2010, a professional Web design services company was contracted to redesign and expand PoolSafety.gov into a state-of-the-art, interactive Web resource, using the campaign name www.PoolSafely.gov. The new site was launched on September 27, 2010. This site has interactive links to all content developed as part of the information and education campaign, with special sections for families, industry, state and local officials, and the media.

Developed Training Programs for Pool Inspections: In 2010, CPSC staff developed and awarded six contracts to leading organizations to create and deliver educational and training programs nationally. Contractors representing top national industry experts were retained to execute training materials for pool owners and operators, manufacturers, and retail outlets, and local and state regulatory entities. Using a combination of live events, webinars, and prepared educational training video programs, each contractor will address issues related to drowning and entrapment prevention for their specified audiences.

Advanced the Rapid Response Initiative: In 2010, the CPSC contacted local media within one business day of learning of a pool or spa drowning or near-drowning incident, or an entrapment incident 100 percent of the time. Since January 29, 2010, in response to 503 media-reported drowning and near-drowning incidents, the CPSC's contractor distributed 29,975 rapid response communications to reporters with "simple steps save lives" information. The CPSC secured four letters to the editor submissions in the The New York Times, The Courier-Journal, the Medford Central Record, and the Ventura County Star in response to incidents. The rapid response campaign generated national media coverage with at least one story published or aired in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

Implemented Minority Outreach Campaign through:

Consumer Outreach: In 2010, the CPSC reached an estimated eight million minority consumers through television interviews, newspaper stories, and social media outreach.

Conducted a Minority Outreach Tour: In 2010, CPSC staff participated in community events and met directly with groups that target minority audiences in seven major U.S. cities. Cities and events included:

- Oklahoma City, OK–Red Earth American Indian Festival;
- Sacramento, CA–Festival de la Familia;
- San Diego, CA–Pacific Islander Festival;
- Washington, DC–National Urban League;
- San Antonio, TX–National Council of La Raza;
- New York City, NY–Asian American Festival; and
- Kansas City, KS–Blacks in Government.

At the events, staff distributed safety message materials and conducted demonstrations of safe behavior, including safe sleep, poison prevention, drowning prevention, and furniture and TV tipover prevention. The events included large audiences (on average 20,000 per event) where CPSC staff distributed more than 10,000 safety publications, posters, and promotional bags containing safety materials. In conjunction with these events, staff extended the CPSC's outreach by conducting interviews and meetings with state and local officials, congressional staff, religious institutions, and community and grassroots groups. Highlights include meetings with the National Urban League (representing 100 affiliates) and staff of Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand (D-NY), Rep. Kendrick Meek (D-FL), and Rep. Tom Cole (R-OK) to discuss Neighborhood Safety Network (NSN) membership and dissemination of safety materials to their constituents, potentially reaching tens of thousands of consumers locally. Media highlights include publication on Black America Web (all four major safety topics printed), Telemundo, and Univision television appearances, local affiliate television and radio interviews, and social media blogs targeted to minority groups and vulnerable populations.

Initiated Grassroots Interchange: During 2010, CPSC staff contacted more than 900 Neighborhood Safety Network members to solicit feedback about the program. A small group of fewer than 10 members was asked a series of questions for in-depth feedback. More general information was solicited from the larger group. The result of the latter effort was more than 120 referrals to other prospective member organizations serving minority and underserved populations.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL COORDINATION

The Commission works with many agencies over the course of a year. This section describes the significant coordination the CPSC has had with other governmental organizations. Specifically, this section provides information on: (1) major state-supported safety initiatives (Virginia Graeme Baker Pool and Spa Safety Act and All-Terrain Vehicles); (2) the Commission's efforts coordinating with state and local programs; and (3) significant communication with other governmental agencies and offices, including any notification under section 218 of the CPSIA.⁹ In 2010, no state or local official filed a written notice to the Commission under section 218 of the CPSIA.

1) Major State-Supported Safety Initiatives

Virginia Graeme Baker Pool and Spa Safety Act: In 2010, the CPSC entered into an Interagency Agreement with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)/National Center for Injury Control and Prevention (NCIPC) to administer sections 1405 and 1406 of the Virginia Graeme Baker Pool and Spa Safety Act (VGB Act). The VGB Act establishes a program whereby any state that has a statute requiring pools and spas to meet specific barrier and anti-entrapment requirements is eligible to apply for a grant. The grant awards are required to be used for hiring and training personnel to implement and enforce the state's swimming pool and safety law and for educating pool construction, installation, and service companies and pool owners and operators about safety standards and drowning prevention. CPSC staff assisted NCIPC in developing a funding opportunity announcement (FOA) about the grant program. The FOA provided information about eligibility to apply for a grant, application content and submission requirements, application review procedures, and application evaluation criteria. The FOA was published on March 29, 2010, by NCIPC with a closing date of May 28, 2010. No states applied for a grant and no grants were awarded.

All-Terrain Vehicles (ATVs): As noted on the CPSC's website, www.atvsafety.gov, 44 states have passed ATV safety laws, with each statute tailored to meet the needs of its particular region and constituency. These laws include requirements for various safety practices of ATV riding, such as age restrictions, helmet use, training, licensing, and passenger restrictions. One example of specific state ATV legislation, which was passed in 2010, is a Massachusetts law that raises the minimum age for ATV operation from 10 years old to 14 years old. The law became effective on October 1, 2010.

2) State and Local Programs

Section 29(a) of the Consumer Product Safety Act requires that the Commission establish a program to promote federal-state cooperation for the purpose of carrying out the Act. The goal of the program is to reduce consumer product related deaths and injuries by leveraging CPSC resources through cost-effective cooperation with state and local governments. In 2010, activities included the following:

⁹ [Section 218 of the CPSIA amends the CPSA, Prohibited Acts, allowing] the attorney general of a state, or other authorized state officer, alleging a [specified] violation ... of the Act, ... on behalf of the residents of the state, ... to obtain appropriate injunctive relief. [The Act requires] a state [to] provide written notice to the Commission [prior] to initiate[ing] civil action by filing a complaint, ... at least 30 days before [unless] ... immediate action is necessary. The Commission may intervene in such civil action.

- Assigning compliance and enforcement activities to the states. The table below provides the number of CPSC assignments to state officials made during the year;
- Supporting states through technical assistance and participation in conferences;
- Monitoring industry's compliance with CPSC mandatory laws;
- Engaging in outreach and dissemination of information through multiple venues, such as journal, print, electronic media, and presentations sharing product safety research;
- Hosting the annual training meeting for state designees;
- Working to meet or exceed annual performance goals. In 2010, state partners conducted product safety activities, including recall checks and inspections, and completed 100 percent within 90 or fewer days after assignment.

Distribution of CPSC Assignments to State Officials Completed in 2010

Type of Assignments	No. of Assignments
State Inspections	1,773
State Recall Checks	702
Total	2,475
